You're Gonna Carry That Weight

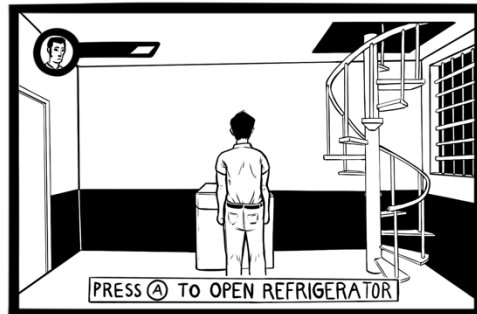

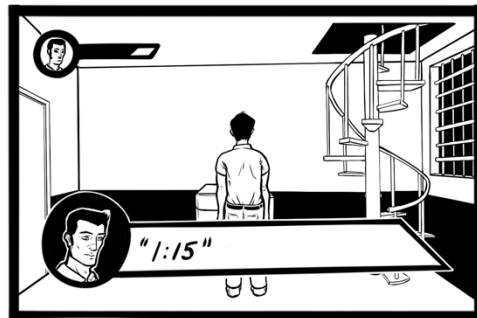

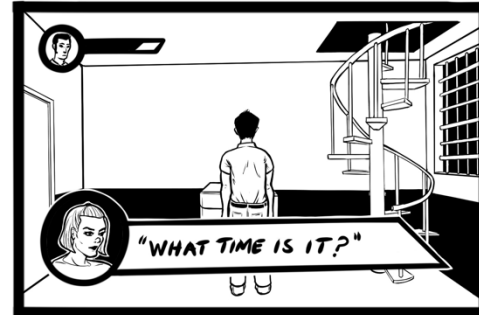

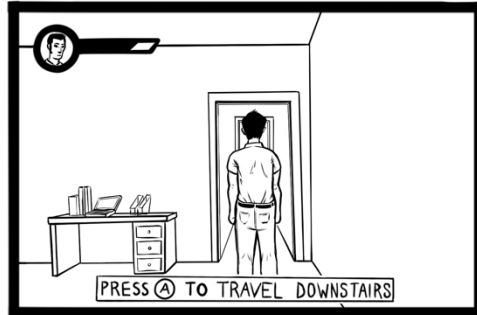

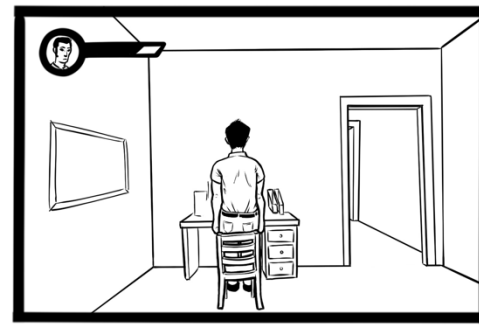

(From Kiyohiko Azuma's Azumanga Daioh)

Chloe: 99 Ways to Tell a Story, 4-Koma style. (Read right to left)

4- Koma is the standard format for a lot of comedy manga, with a title followed by three panels setting up the punchline in the final panel. It actually worked pretty perfectly for this story.

I attached an example of 4-Koma manga beneath as well, for those who aren't familiar with it.

Alec: Matt Madden as a terrible video game

Martha: Matt Madden
as a baby

January 7th: Mr Madden's Trial- guilty of murder

Prosecutor: Now, Mr. Madden, could you tell me where you were on December 22nd at 1:15pm?

Madden: Um... I was looking for something.

Prosecutor: Could you be more specific?

Madden: I was working from home and stopped because I knew I had to go downstairs and get something. When I got downstairs, my wife asked me what time it was. I said, 1:15 pm of course, and then all of a sudden I forgot what I went down there to get! Could you believe it!

Prosecutor: And were you frustrated that your wife distracted you?

Madden: ...yeah! I was frustrated!

Prosecutor: And it that why you murdered her?... Mr Madden what are you looking at??

Madden: Oh! Sorry I dozed off, what was the question?

Prosecutor rubs both of his hands on his face in frustration
