"Good people on both sides."

We are complicated, a tangle of contradictions.

Our lives unfold as a myriad of choices. May be opposite in another.

Some actions stem from fear, or ignorance.

Hurt, others out of anger.

And of course, shape our own.

The choices of those who came before us.

Over time, we can become entrenched.

Unable to see other sides.

And just how close we are to one another.

But.

Our choices connect us, all of us.

To understand that is to understand there are no sides.
